INTRODUCTION

THIS VOLUME of Encyclopædia Britannica contains: an Index to volumes 1 to 23; an Atlas of the World; an Index to the Atlas of the World; and complete listings of all the contributors to Encyclopædia Britannica, first alphabetically by initials that are signed to the articles and then alphabetically by the last name.

INDEX TO VOLUMES 1 TO 23

THE INDEX to volumes 1 to 23 begins on page 1 in this volume. This Index is the Text Index as differentiated from the Atlas Index. The Text Index is the result of an accumulation of more than 500,000 cards giving the precise quarter of a page in which a thing or a person or an idea is mentioned in the 39,000 Britannica entries. These thousands of cards have been assembled and alphabetized to make the Text Index. This Index gathers together for the convenience of the reader all the topics covered by the 36,000,000 words in volumes 1 to 23, sorts them out and tabulates them, for much the same reason that roads and signposts are planned and built in an unfamiliar country.

Encyclopædia Britannica is so vast a work that it cannot be used to greatest advantage without first consulting the Index. For example, if the reader turns to the article UNITED STATES in volume 22, he will find a long article on that country, but the article by no means represents all the information in Britannica about the United States. To find all this material the reader must go to the Text Index, where under the entry "United States" he will find not only the reference to the main article but also about 1,000 references to information in many related articles throughout the 23 text volumes of Britannica.

Again, a reader may wish to learn something about the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York city. If he looks for it in volume 15 under its alphabetical position, he will not find an article on the subject. The Text Index, however, gives him under "Metropolitan Museum of Art" references to different articles in Encyclopædia Britannica where information on the Metropolitan Museum of Art may be found.

The reader who turns to the Index first will use Britannica most intelligently and profitably.

Because the purpose of the many thousands of Index entries is to classify, clarify and search out specific information, much attention has been given to their simplification. They are placed in alphabetical order according to the same system used to arrange the titles of articles throughout the text of the 23 volumes. All entries, regardless of the number of words, are considered single headings and are alphabetized letter by letter down to the punctuation mark. Examples and a further explanation are given under Index Rules and List of Abbreviations on pages viii to x of this volume.

Two kinds of type are used in the Index—black-faced (or bold-faced) type and light-faced type. The black-faced type signifies article headings; the light-faced type refers to portions of related articles covering the subject of the entry. The first page reference after a bold-faced entry is always to the article itself.

References to towns are followed by abbreviations giving the country, state or other political subdivisions in which the towns are situated. Names of lakes, rivers and mountains are identified as physical features. Persons are often identified in parentheses by nationality or profession. Things of the same name are often followed by a descriptive word or an abbreviation in parentheses.

In the case of important articles, for example, "France," where there are scores and often hundreds of references, references are grouped together under different subtitles, as Agriculture, Army, Commerce and Industry, Finance, History, etc. These subheadings are also arranged alphabetically. In this connection the reader is reminded that in the body of Britannica itself, in their alphabetical places, are many headings under which are given lists of the more important articles covering that subject. Thus, the reader will find, in their alphabetical positions in the text, entries entitled AGRICULTURE (ARTICLES ON); ARCHITECTURE (ARTICLES ON); etc.

In addition to the Index entries, which have volume and page references, there are thousands of cross references in the Index, for example, "Taiwan, isl., China: see Formosa." This means that all the references with information about Taiwan will be listed under the Index entry "Formosa." It is important to remember that cross references in the Index refer only to Index headings.

The reader will notice that at the top of the outside column of each page of the Text Index and the Atlas Index are key words or headings which identify the first and the last entries on that page. These enable the reader to find more readily subjects included within each page. The reader is also urged to study the rules which immediately follow this introduction. There he will find detailed discussions and examples of the rules concerning geographical entries, references to illustrations, etc., which will greatly increase the usefulness of his encyclopaedia.

THE ATLAS

ALL THE MAPS of the continents and countries of the world are brought together in this volume, plates 1 to 108 (including six general historical maps). Probably the chief use of maps for the general reader is to show the relative position of a state or city or some geographical feature; it is, therefore, advantageous to have all maps brought together in the volume with a separate Atlas Index, where all names are arranged alphabetically. Moreover, the reader of an article about the United States, or about any other country, may wish to have the map of that country open before him as he is reading.

However, in volumes 1 to 23 there are also many historical maps, such as those of ancient Greece and Rome, as well as numerous physiographic, military and other types of maps. These accompany the articles they illustrate.

The maps display the beauty, accuracy and good judgment that have made maps in Britannica so favourably known everywhere. They are modern in every respect and present a complete coverage of the world.

INDEX TO ATLAS

THE ATLAS INDEX immediately follows the map plates in this volume. The Atlas Index was prepared by card-indexing all the place names—cities, towns, rivers, oceans, mountains, etc.—on each of the political-physical maps. As in the Text Index, these thousands of cards were assembled and alphabetized.

If a reader wishes to find the city of London, Eng., in the Atlas, he saves time by first turning to the entry "London" in the Atlas Index. It will lead him directly to the right map in the Atlas and to the precise position of London on the map. In using the Atlas Index, it is advisable first to read the Index Rules and List of Abbreviations on the following pages.

In the Atlas Index each place name is preceded by the map plate number. Following the name, and in consecutive order, a pronunciation of the name, general location and latitude and longitude are given. The latitude and longitude are the approximate geographic co-ordinates used to locate a place on a map.

LISTS OF CONTRIBUTORS

AT THE END of this volume, following the Index to the Atlas, are two lists of the contributors to Encyclopædia Britannica—those persons who wrote the articles in volumes 1 through 23. The articles are signed by initials, and in the first list these initials are arranged alphabetically and are identified with the full names of the contributors. The second list gives all the contributors, alphabetically by last name, and the titles of articles signed by them.

INDEX RULES

I. Typography.—In the following Index to volumes 1 to 23, entries in bold-faced capitals (e.g., FRANCE) represent articles in the Encyclopædia Britannica; entries in light-faced type refer to information in the text of various articles, in an illustration or on a map. Immediately after the entry comes the reference to the article heading if there is one. After that the references are to information contained in the text of the various articles.

References may be of a general or specific nature. General references give only the volume, page and location. A reference with specific information on one phase of a topic is preceded by a subhead or a subsubhead, or both.

Example:

LIEGE, Belg. 13-1080c ←(General reference)
Brialmont 4-168c ←(Subhead and reference)
captures ←(Subhead)
1702 21-165d
1914 9-641b; 23-753b ←(Subsubheads and references)

All references show (1) the volume in bold-faced Arabic numerals; (2) the page number in light-faced type; (3) the exact quarter of the page by means of the letters a, b, c, d, signifying respectively the upper and lower halves of the first and second columns (e.g., CANADA 4-728c). In references to maps in the text these letters are sometimes replaced by an indication of the map square or "grid" in the usual form (e.g., B4). A capital letter following the page number denotes an "insert page," usually added because of insertion of new material. Thus 23-792A, B, C, D, etc., fall between 23-792 and 23-793.

Entries in quotation marks denote books, poems, plays, reviews, essays, stories, newspapers, histories, etc.; operas, oratorios, cantatas, symphonic poems and similar works. Quotation marks are also used for ships, pictures, songs, race horses, statues, etc.

Cross references in the Index are to Index entries, not to the text in volumes 1 to 23.

II. Illustrations.—When illustrations on the text pages are indexed, the reference gives the volume (in bold-faced type) and the page number after the designation "il." (illustration) or the specific figure number, for example, fig. 1. References to half-tone or colour plates, designated "Pl." (Plate), give the article which the illustration accompanies, the plate number if there is more than one and numbers of the figures on the plate when pertinent, for example, Pl. I 8-ENGLISH HISTORY.

III. Geographical Entries.—These, when situated in the United States, are followed by the state; in Great Britain, by the county and country; in Australia by the state and the country; in Canada and South Africa by the province and the country; and when elsewhere by the country only, unless two of the same name and character occur in the same country, when the province or department or similar subdivision is given to differentiate them. Topographical entries other than towns and villages are described as "riv.," "mt.," etc. In cases like "Big Mountain," "Big River," denoting physical features, the arrangement is Big, mt.

Big, riv.

Such entries as "Big Mountain, Calif.," or "Mount Hope, Mass.," denote towns, not mountains.

IV. Alphabetization.—All entries, whether consisting of a single word or of two or more, are treated for the purpose of alphabetization as single complete headings. For example, according to the system adopted, the hypothetical entries "Boxing," "Brahms, Johannes," "Boy Scouts," "Boycott," "Bush, Vannevar," "Boyer, Sir Alfred," "Bush, Miss.," "Boyer, John," "Boyer, Charles," "Bush (bot.)" would be alphabetized thus:

Boxing
Boycott
Boyer, Sir Alfred
Boyer, Charles
Boyer, John
Boy Scouts
Brahms, Johannes
Bush, Vannevar
Bush, Miss.
Bush (bot.)

The position is determined letter by letter down to the punctuation mark. Hyphenated words are treated as one word. Two words used as a subject are alphabetized as if they were one. The alphabetization continues to the punctuation mark, and the position of names which are the same is then determined by the order (1) persons, (2) places, (3) things. The order is next determined by the alphabetization of the word following the punctuation mark, except that titles are not considered. Individuals of the same name but with different titles are arranged in order of the importance of their titles; e.g., saints precede popes, popes precede emperors, then follow kings, dukes, earls, etc. A classifying word or phrase following the entry is not treated as part of the heading for alphabetical purposes except in a series of identical entries.

Names beginning with "Mc," "M'" are alphabetized as "Mac"; "St." as "Saint"; "Ste." as "Sainte"; "SS." as "Saints."

Names with connectives such as "de," "von," etc., are generally alphabetized under the main part of the name—GOGH, VINCENT WILLEM VAN—except where anglicized, as in DU PONT.

All numerals that might be expected to occur at the beginning of entries are spelled out; the same is true of Greek letters; e.g., $\alpha$ ray as alpha ray.
